Former Jersey Champion Plays in Poor Form and Has No Winning Chance.

STYMIES CUT A FIGURE

Veteran's Good Fortune Turns Almost Sure Loss Into Win at Start.

GARDEN CITY, May 9 .- Max Behr of Paltusrol tried his hand at the task of Walter J. Travis on his own in the final round of the Garden course in the final round of the Garden City Golf Club's invitation tournament this afternoon, but the attempt was a dismal failure. The "old man" romped away with the match and won by 6 up and 4 to play. With his victory at Lakewood last week and that which he won to-day to his credit Travis has monopolised the honors in the metropolitan season thus far.

was not an abundance of good folf in the match this afternoon, and what there was Travis furnished. Behr. what there was Travis furnished. Behr, who was ill last night and is at present trying to transform his style of swing, went to pieces under the strain of the crucial match and played wretchedly. To add to his discomfiture whenever he managed to pull himself together and seemed about to win a hole Travis would counter with a long putt or a deadly approach that would discount the former Jersey champion's hid for the hole.

approach that would discount the former Jersey champion's bid for the hole. Several times during the round Travis holed long putts just when he needed them most, and as he made few mistakes through the green, though his play was not especially brilliant, he had no appreciable trouble in winning.

On the first hole the veteran gave his opponent a taste of undeserved adversity. Behr should have won the hole, but Travis stymied him twice, so that he could do no better than halve. The first stymie came when Behr was about fifteen feet from the cup and playing 3. He putted past the intervening ball, and his ball ran a foot or two over the hole. Travis then putted and overran a few inches, laying Behr another stymie. The hole was halved in 5.

The second went to Travis when Behr had prevented him from making the try for a 3, to which his good approach en-titled him.

With the match all square, Behr suddenly began to play the most amateurish sort of shots. He took 7 for the fourth hole, blubbing three shots on his way to the green. He made a poor drive on the fifth, but recovered well and seemed ready to halve the hole, when Travis ran down a thirty-five foot downhill putt for a 3, when this the back of the cup with a renat hit the back of the cup with a reounding bang.

The "old man" kept right on winning, and did not stop until he had taken five straight holes from Behr. The ninth was halved, so they turned for home with Travis still five up. He was out in 39

COLLOWERS of Princeton had to bear the brunt of a landslide of defeats yesterday. The husky crew lost to Columbia in the triangular race on Carnegie Lake. The varsity nine was defeated by Cornell. The varsity track team was swamped at New Haven by Yale, while the freshman lost to the New Haven yearling at Princeton. At Exeter the Tiger cubs trailed in baseball by a score of 3 to 1. One sport alone saved the day from resulting in a unanimous verdict in favor of the opponents of the Tigers. The goif team defeated Dartmouth at Princeton.
